

The Supremacy of International Agreements on the Legislation in Force

PhD (C.) Hana Bahtijari Jakupi
University of Pristina, Kosovo

Prof. Dr. Justina Shiroka Pula
University of Pristina, Kosovo

Abstract

The main object of the new legal framework must be the creation of conditions for attracting investment in the chain of economy which will provide long-term positive effects in the economy. It is unclear what legal basis has the longest impact on attracting foreign investments through direct legal and sub legal acts or international agreements which are signed between the investor and the state where the investment is made. Many authors have studied the legislation for investment or only the international agreements, but never their relationship. Comparative methods have been used in relation to the international agreements signed between the Government of Republic of Kosovo and other states who are interested to invest in Kosovo. This material will analyze the issue of International Agreement and legislation into force in relation to investments. Nowadays all developed countries are interested to have many direct foreign investments. But these investments are to be absorbed in the best way need a clarification of the legal bases and International Agreement that this state signs and offers to the investors with these Agreement.

Keywords: International Agreement, direct foreign investments, legal acts and sub legal acts.

Full Text: PDF

This work is licensed under Creative Commons Attribution 3.0 License.

Academic Journal of Business, Administration, Law and Social Sciences ISSN 2410-3918 (print)

ISSN 2410-8693 (online)

Copyright © IIPCCCL-International Institute for Private, Commercial and Competition law